FROM PROVIDENT LIVING

Another vital aspect of providing for the material needs of our families is the provision you should be making for your family in case of an emergency. (Ezra Taft Benson, Ensign, Nov 1987)

Besides emergency supplies, your family should have a plan for how to respond to any emergency. Take time to discuss and practice for emergency situations with your family. Have fire or earthquake drills so that children will all know how to safely exit your home and where to gather. In planning, consider what would happen if a parent or another family member were not at home during an emergency. Would the family members at home be able to respond to the emergency? Responsibilities for emergency response should be divided and often duplicated among family members so that regardless of who is at home, the family will still be able to respond properly. You should have a plan for how family members will contact one another if the family is scattered during the emergency. This may include having a prearranged meeting place, a code word, or a relative's phone number.

Family Plan Packet

Pick up ONE Family Plan Packet per family. Includes spaces for pictures, contact info, addresses for all of your family members along with City, County & State numbers.

Cost: FREE!

Packets will be available throughout March, pick one up for anyone you may know in OUR neighborhood. If you want to share with friends, download it from PGWard.org

How to teach Children!

In preparing your children for emergencies, consider the effect that exposure to repetitive media and news reports of real disasters may have on your children. You may wish to limit such exposure to reduce stress and anxiety. The Federal Emergency Management Agency website (www.fema.gov/kids) has some wonderful material to assist children in learning more about disaster preparedness. They have a program on the website called becoming a "Disaster Action Kid".

Finally, help your family to know that if they are prepared, they need not fear emergency situations.
